IMPROVEMENT BONDS CARRY

PEOPLE OF SIERRA MADRE
VOTE FOR A PROGRESSIVE
CITY—THINGS WILL HUM

That the people of Sierra Madre have confidence in the future of the town and are loyal to its best interests was clearly demonstrated last Tuesday when they voted overwhelmingly in favor of the bond issue, the vote standing as follows:

Water Bonds
For 292
Against 50

Street Improvement Bonds
For 270
Against 58
Total number of votes cast 344
Votes necessary to carry 228

The ballot was divided into two items, one for $60,000.00 for the water works and the other for $10,000.00 for street improvements. Some voters "split the ticket," voting for one item and against the other, and a few voted for one item only.

The threat, or suggestion, was made to the writer that if the Board of Trustees did not agree to spend a part of the money to develop more water in the mountains, the bonds "could" be defeated at the election, and no doubt this phase of the matter did influence some voters, but there were plenty of others who believed with The News that the sensible thing to do was to vote for the bonds and get the money and settle any question as to how it was to be spent later.

It is unreasonable to expect that any community can agree unanimously on any subject of civic interest, and thinking people may honestly disagree. Therefore, The News has no criticism to offer concerning those who voted "no."

Well, now that this campaign has ended successfully, let's all get together and "pull" for Sierra Madre. Our interests are identical and we all want to see the city grow and prosper.

There will be no extra charge on your telephone bill for the items you may wish to send in to the News office.

A LAY SERMON

"For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he."—Prov. 23:7.

An ordinary man, clothed in rags, penniless and hungry, seeking employment, will submit to insult and abuse, but given a good business, a good balance in the bank, good clothes, a full stomach and a clear conscience and the same man will throw up his head, thrust out his chin, look every man square in the eye and demand and receive the respect of his fellows.

Call it psychology or what you will, it's a matter of mind—as a man thinketh, so is he, and the same thing applies to a town, city or community. Do you think your town is a dead town; do you think the people are all asleep? If all of the rest of your townspeople think the same, then it is a dead or a sleepy town.

Do you talk it to your neighbors? Do you criticize and find fault? Your example is followed, for every man has his influence, and the impression, suggestion or belief spreads to other towns—rival towns that are quick to repeat, "Sierra Madre is a dead town; they are all asleep up there."

If, on the other hand, some authority or force could compel everyone to assert that this is a live town, "you bet, we are a bunch of live wires,"—the reputation would spread to other towns and the assertion would convince you, yourself, that it was so, and you would continue to repeat, as a matter of fact, that Sierra Madre is a live town for, as a town thinketh in its heart, so is it.

BEST CITRUS FRUIT LAND

The decomposed granite soil of Sierra Madre is the best for oranges, lemons, grapefruit, etc., and the altitude, above the fogs and the shelter afforded by the mountains makes protection against frost and freezing unnecessary. The tremendous saving in the cost of producing citrus fruits, over other localities where large amounts of money and labor are necessary to combat Jack Frost at times during the winter, makes an orange grove much more valuable here than in less favored places. Tell the stranger about this when you are boosting for Sierra Madre.

DEDICATION OF ST. RITA'S

SHRINE'S FORMAL DEDICATION
IS WITNESSED BY LARGE CONGREGATION

The dedication of St. Rita's Shrine, which took place last Sunday afternoon, was a great success from every point of view. In spite of the rain and threatening weather, a large number of people came out from Los Angeles, Pasadena and other surrounding centers, both by automobile and on special cars provided by the Pacific Electric. The attendance was about 300, so that a great many had to stand outside.

The clergy, on arriving, were received by Mrs. L. M. Farnham, who kindly placed her charming residence at their disposal. From there all went in procession to the church.

The ceremony of blessing the church was performed by the Right Rev. John J. Cantwell, Bishop of Monterey and Los Angeles. He was assisted by Msgr. McCarthy of Pasadena and the following priests: Fathers Conaty and Cawley of Los Angeles, Follen of Altadena, Kirk of South Pasadena, Serrano of San Gabriel, Legayder of Burbank, O'Connell of Pasadena, Powers of Monrovia. The local pastor, Father Woodcutt, feels justly proud of the splendid result achieved.

The music and singing were furnished by a special choir from Pasadena, with Prof. Heinze at the organ.

After the church ceremony, the visiting clergy and choir were entertained for dinner at the beautiful residence of Mrs. Schmitt, Sycamore Place.

Great credit is due to the ladies of the parish who attended to the interior decoration of the church and provided for the entertainment of the clergy.

All visitors seemed delighted with the church services and the attractive appearance of the shrine and promised to visit it frequently. Many also were heard commenting favorably on the beautiful location of Sierra Madre, which they had never visited before.

For the last six months a great many people have come to visit the shrine and many more will come, as it becomes more widely known.

Father Woodcutt proposes to organize frequent celebrations of a similar nature, which will greatly help to make Sierra Madre better known to the outside world. ***

ANOTHER CONVERT

Editor News: As a citizen of Sierra Madre, I want to commend the manner in which you are 'running the News' and fighting for what you believe to be for the best interest of the city.

"In times past I have not agreed with you in many things and I do not entirely do so yet, but if your policy puts Sierra Madre ahead, I'm for it."

"I have watched your efforts to have things put over in this place, in most of which you were temporarily, at least, unsuccessful, because you worked alone, and I have heard you say that you were ready to 'lay down' but you certainly should feel repaid for the year's work in the glorious victory of the bond election Tuesday, for I know it was your paper which first showed the necessity and urged a bond issue, and I feel sure that if a vote were taken last summer when you first began hammering away, that the bonds would have lost by a big majority, but your fairness in handling the campaign and your squareness in offering space to the opposition and your constantly keeping it before the people made many converts including myself.

"In the 'late unpleasantness' concerning the question of sanitarium or no sanitarium, I was a radical 'anti,' but in this matter also I am ready to admit I have had a change of heart. I believe if we advertised this place as a health resort and induced some big institution for the cure of 'tb', backed by good financial men, to locate here, it would be of great benefit to the town, and I believe a great many former 'antis' will now help to bring this about.

"Now, Mr. Editor, don't think I have an axe to grind or that I am 'spreading the salve,' for I am no personal admirer of yours. About the first thing you did when you took the News was to publish a list of delinquent subscribers and I did say I would never pay the bill nor subscribe

NOW EVERYBODY TOGETHER

A LONG STRONG PULL IN SAME
DIRECTION WILL ACCOMPLISH WONDERS

We want every man who is interested in seeing Sierra Madre prosper to read the last paragraph of the article headed, "Another Convert," on this page. That's the spirit that makes cities, and it took a real MAN to say it. The writer felt "sore" too because of some things this correspondent said, but when it comes to working for Sierra Madre we will pull double with any one who is on the square.

Nothing hurts a town so much as allowing personal differences to interfere with a harmonious unity in behalf of the welfare of a community. No matter how much you may dislike a man, remember that he has his friends, his following and his influence, but if you two refuse to work together, or pull in opposite directions, the efforts of each is neutralized. He may be just as good and loyal a citizen as yourself and if you work together for the benefit of the town, pull in the same direction, you are bound to get results.

Sierra Madre has great natural advantages. She is standing on the threshold of a prosperous future; she is going ahead from this date with rapid and lengthy strides. Are you big enough, broad enough to forget all little personal differences, get in line and all pull together in the same direction?

PARENT TEACHERS MEETING

The Parent-Teachers association will meet next Wednesday afternoon at the Kindergarten building at 3 o'clock. The teachers will have charge of the program and an interesting afternoon is anticipated.

for your paper, but I eventually did both as you know, because I believe your paper is doing all it can to further the interests of Sierra Madre, and so am I. Therefore, we can work together to that end without approving of each other's peculiarities. Come on; let's start something."

—A Home Booster.

A PSYCHOLOGICAL CHANGE

It is very noticeable that a psychological change has come over Sierra Madre city. This has been commented upon by quite a few. The old order of things has changed. A more tolerant spirit is being shown, greater interest is being displayed in civic matters, the march of progress is sweeping on and on and at last the old town is awakening. Swaddling clothes were discarded some time ago metaphorically speaking. Then we adopted knickerbockers and short skirts, while now we are gradually getting into full uniform and keeping in step with our neighboring foothill towns. The News should be given full credit for its part in effecting this change, with its optimistic spirit and energetic push.

There is still much room for improvement, but the new spirit that has sprung up will do much to keep us in line. Not alone has an increased population helped to bring about this change, but a new era is opening throughout the world, and it is noticeable in the smaller cities that there is a closer bond of neighborliness and friendship among the inhabitants. There is a greater "get-together" spirit than ever before. Political feuds, social scraps and petty jealousies are hard to find here. Our atmosphere is one of almost complete serenity.

Very little rivalry is shown nowadays. Those who have come here and settled in our midst feel this psychological atmosphere. We must and should keep this feeling. If we think we are living in the best place in the world, others will commence to think likewise and the effect will spread.

TWYXCROSS TOWN

A late issue of the Overseas Daily Mail, published in London, England, contains the following reference to a town named for an ancestor of our fellow townsman, S. R. G. Twycross: "A Runic cross, presented by Sir Samuel Waring as a memorial to the villagers who have fallen in the war, was unveiled at Twycross, Leicestershire, by Lady Waring."

Would Be All Right.

Bernice asked her mother what she was going to do today. Her mother said she was going to wash the windows. Bernice answered: "Oh, mother, don't; it's going to rain." Whereupon Dorothy, aged three, said: "Mother, you wash them. You can hang them in the attic."

SWITCH OFF!

Put aside the Salts, Oil, Calomel, or Pills and take "Cascarets."

Are you keeping your bowels, liver, and stomach clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets, or merely whipping them into action every few days with Salts, Cathartic Pills, Oil, or Purgative Waters?

Stop having a bowel wash-day. Let Cascarets gently cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the colon and bowels all the constipated waste matter and poisons so you can straighten up.

Cascarets tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken, or cause any inconvenience, and cost so little too.—Adv.

PUBLIC ROADS*MANY GOOD-ROAD PROJECTS

Oklahoma Leads Country in Size of Single Scheme Handled During the Month of July.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Among the special features of the recent federal aid road record as kept by the United States department of agriculture are three road projects to cost over $1,000,000, one of them over $2,000,000. Pennsylvania had first place in the number of statements approved during July, the amount of federal aid allowances, and the estimated cost of roads to be constructed, while Nebraska turned in the greatest mileage. Seventeen projects in Pennsylvania approved will cost $4,607,928.41 for which the federal aid is $1,968,997.40. Ohio with 12 projects came next to Pennsylvania in the number approved and in the estimated cost of the roads to be improved, and third in the amount of federal aid.

Oklahoma's two projects occupy third place for the month in the estimated cost of the roads and second in the amount of federal aid allowance. This state leads the country in the size of a single project handled in July. It is estimated to cost $1,271,555.60 for which $600,000 federal aid is allowed.

In the record of approvals for the month of August Arkansas occupies first place in the estimated cost and mileage of projects and in respect to the largest project. Minnesota is first in the total number of projects approved, namely 11, and second in the amount of federal aid allowances. Pennsylvania received the largest amount of federal aid and her six approved projects come second in the estimated cost of the roads.

On a Massachusetts project, a short concrete road, the estimated cost is at the rate of $127,864 a mile. This is the highest average cost per mile so far shown in any federal aid road. A bituminous brick or concrete road in Ohio will average $67,716 a mile and 7.14 miles of concrete or brick in Pennsylvania will average $64,015, while another project in Pennsylvania will average $56,443 per mile.

GOOD ROADS CONGRESS DATE

Ninth Annual Gathering to Be Held in Louisville, Ky., During February, 1920.

The ninth American Good Roads congress, under the auspices of the American Road Builders' association, will be held in Louisville, Ky., the second week in February, 1920. A good roads show will be held at the same time.

Influence of Good Roads.

The influence of good roads on social and economic conditions, upon the development of industrial and farming pursuits and the promotion of business is recognized in the majority of the communities of this country.

Factor in Education.

The increasing use of the automobile has been the greatest factor in educating the people, particularly of rural communities, in the importance of good roads.

STARTING MOTOR DURING WINTER

One of Simplest Ways Is Through Application of Heat to the Carburetor.

PLAN OF EFFICIENT DEVICE

Illustration Given Herewith Gives Good Idea of What Is Wanted—Carbon Filament Lamp Is Particularly Adapted.

One of the simplest ways to start an automobile during cold weather is through application of heat to the carburetor. Most appliances to perform this particular duty are complicated and costly. The following device, which can be made by the amateur workman, will be found easy to construct and wonderfully efficient.

Use Metal Shield.

Cut out a metal shield, somewhat after the pattern shown in the sketch. The shape and size depend upon your particular make of carburetor, but the drawing gives a general idea of what is wanted. Bend the two short lugs in to form shoulders and then fit the longer lugs around the body of the carburetor.

Metal Shield to Hold an Ordinary Electric Globe Close to the Carburetor.

retor, tightening them in place with small stove-bolts. This will leave the shield projecting away from one side about two inches. Bend the top and bottom panels in place, forcing the small lugs inside the shell.

Carbon Filament Lamp Best.

After the shield is properly fitted, take it off and secure a lamp socket to the inside so that the bulb, when in place, will bear close to the carburetor. Use a carbon filament lamp as it gives the maximum amount of heat. Lead the wires from the base out through holes in the slides; being careful to insulate them from the metal. When all is complete, put the shield back in place and wrap the whole apparatus with thin asbestos paper. Then bind it on with fine wire.

Connect the wires with the storage battery of the car and with a convenient switch on the dash.

In the severest weather, this device will insure sufficient heat to start an automobile with but very little delay. —L. B. Robbins, in Popular Science Monthly.

TREND TOWARD CAR HEATERS

Winter Driving Requires Some Form of Heating for Tonneau of Car for Comfort.

An outstanding feature of motor car production this season is said to be the trend toward car heaters. Twenty manufacturers are equipping all or part of their closed lines with heaters. Some automobile manufacturers think before long the heater will be regarded as a necessary part of standard equipment, since comfort in winter driving requires some form of heating for the tonneau for the car. This applies particularly to open models.

JACK RAISES OR LOWERS CAR WITHOUT CRAWLING UNDER TO MAKE ADJUSTMENT

A jack whose handle turns instead of pumping up and down has been produced by a Massachusetts manufacturer. The handle is a long one when extended, permitting the operator to put the device in place and raise or lower his car without crawling under the machine. Ball bearings carry the lift and thrust, a turn on the handle in one direction lifting the car and a twist in the reverse direction lowering it, and the operation is said to be much easier than that of the ordinary jack. When not in use the tool folds up compactly and is carried in a small bag.

TO REPLACE CURRENT IN AVERAGE BATTERY

When Overdrawn It Is Likely to Cause Much Discomfort.

Liquid in Fully Charged Battery Will Stand "Below Zero" Temperatures—Connections of Two Main Cables Must Be Tight.

Average batteries are of different sizes and have capacities from 60 ampere hours up. A pair of good headlights may discharge the battery at five amperes. This means they alone would exhaust a completely charged sixty-hour battery in twelve hours. To replace this current you would have to drive the car probably seven or eight hours when charging at the rate of ten amperes.

An average winter cranking will consume enough current to require from six to twelve miles driving to replace it.

An overdrawn bank account may cause mental discomfort. An overdrawn battery account is apt to cause discomfort—both mental and physical.

The liquid (electrolyte) in a fully charged battery will stand "below zero" temperatures. In a discharged battery it will freeze at a much higher temperature. This is reason for special economy in cold weather. The liquid also should be kept well above the plates. Offer a battery a drink at least once in two weeks, but—in cold weather—only just before a run. Water added to the electrolyte will mix only when the battery is charging or discharging. Before such mixing it is just clear water and will freeze at 32 degrees.

The two main cable connections at the battery must be tight. Looseness here has been the cause of much hand cranking. Look at these contact posts occasionally, and if green corrosion appears disconnect the terminals and clean all surfaces well. Corrosion working in between the post and the cable terminal or between the end of the wire cable itself and the sleeve terminal it is soldered into, interferes with the free flow of current into and out of the battery.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

Do not let engine run when car is standing.

Studiously avoid spilling leakage and evaporation.

The spring clips are, in nine out of ten cases, neglected car parts.

Have the carburetor adjusted to give largest possible mileage per gallon.

One of the surest ways to shorten the life of a tire is the continual driving in deep ruts.

Do not fasten chains too tightly nor to a spoke. Many a tire has been ruined by disregarding this advice.

Leaky valve guides will cause misfiring, especially at low speeds, air being sucked in and diluting the mixture.

A source of noise that is frequently overlooked is the case covering the timing gears. It should be kept filled with lubricant.

A small quantity of glycerin applied to the wind shield with a piece of clean waste will help keep the glass clean when driving in the rain.

The penalty of non-lubrication is wear. The penalty of wear is noise and the penalty of noise is discomfort. In other words, oil and be comfortable.

Will Not be One Day Without PE-RU-NA

This Lady TELLS Her FRIENDS

Mrs. Mary Fricke, 507 Bornman St., Belleville, Ill., is just one of the many thousands of ladies throughout the country who, after an agony of years, have at last found health, strength and vigor in PE-RU-NA.

Her own words tell of her suffering and recovery better than we can do it: "I suffered with my stomach, had awful cramps and headaches so I often could not lay on a pillow. Saw your book, tried PE-RU-NA and got good results from the first bottle. To be sure of a cure I took twelve bottles. I have recommended PE-RU-NA to my friends and all are well pleased with results. I will not be one day without PE-RU-NA. Have not had a doctor since I started with PE-RU-NA, which was about fifteen years ago. I am now sixty-three years old, hale, hearty and well. Can do as much work as my daughters. I feel strong and healthy and weigh near two hundred pounds. Before, I weighed as little as one hundred. I hope lots of people use PE-RU-NA and get the results I did." An experience like that of Mrs. Fricke is an inspiration to every sick and suffering woman.

MRS. MARY FRICKE

If you have catarrh, whether it be of the nose, throat, stomach, bowels, or other organs, PE-RU-NA is the remedy. It is not new; it is not an experiment. PE-RU-NA has been tried. PE-RU-NA has been used by thousands who once were sick and are now well. To prevent coughs, colds, grip and influenza and to hasten recovery there is nothing better.

PE-RU-NA will improve the appetite and digestion, purify the blood, soothe the irritated mucous linings, eradicate the waste material and corruption from the system. It will tone up the nerves, give you health, strength, vigor and the joy of living. Do what Mrs. Mary Fricke and thousands more have done—try PE-RU-NA. You will be glad, happy, thankful.

YOU NEED NOT SUFFER FROM CATARRH

But You Must Drive It Out of Your Blood.

Catarrh is annoying enough when it chokes up your nostrils and air passages, causing difficult breathing and other discomforts. Real danger comes when it reaches down into your lungs. This is why you should at once realize the importance of the proper treatment, and lose no time experimenting with worthless reme-lies which touch only the surface. To be rid of Catarrh, you must drive the disease germs out of your blood.

Splendid results have been reported from the use of S. S. S., which acts on the catarrh germs in the blood.

GOT HOMES AT SMALL COST

Fortunate Purchasers Profited by the Dismantling of Government-Built Munition Plants.

To select a dwelling from a large stock of samples, buy it "over the counter" at a bargain price, and then pack it on a motor truck to be sent home, is a novel solution of the house hunting problem, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. That is literally what has been happening recently, however, in a number of communities where munition-plant housing facilities are being dismantled by the government. All the purchaser needs is a vacant lot, of course, and a foundation for his new home.

Near Cincinnati more than 200 four-room houses were sold in two days at the remarkable price of $200 each, their original cost to the government having been over $1,500. Purchasers of these houses have been able to get concrete block foundations built for an average price of $223, and to secure truck and trailer delivery within five miles for $120, making a total cost of $553 for a well-built home.

SEASONABLE FOODS.

To each man is given a day, and his work for the day; And once, and no more, he is given to travel this way. And woe if he flies from the task, whatever the odds; For the task is appointed to him on the scroll of the gods. —Edwin Markham.

For those who enjoy kidneys the following dish will prove worth a trial:

Beefsteak and Kidney Pie.—For an ordinary pie use one pound of round steak and four or five lamb's kidneys. Cut the steak in to pieces an inch and a half long and wide. Cut the kidneys through the center. Put the kidneys into cold, slightly salted water and allow this to come slowly to the boiling point. As soon as the boiling point is reached, draw off the water, add cold, salted water and boil again. Then drain, rinse well and add the kidneys to the steak.

In the meantime, roll the pieces of steak in seasoned flour, and brown nicely in a frying pan. Cover with water; add a pinch of marjoram, summer savory, and a few grains of nutmeg. Simmer until the meat is tender. Add any further seasoning needed. Thicken the gravy with flour and butter. Pour the meat into a pie dish with gravy enough to cover and then add the pastry top. Serve either hot or cold.

Pastry for Meat Pies.—Cream together one and one-half tablespoons each of lard and butter. Put this into one cupful of flour which has been mixed with one-half teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Add enough cold milk to make the particles stick together. Roll and cover to the edge of the dish. Leave an opening for the steam to escape. Serve from the dish after baking a golden brown.

Lemon Honey.—Cream one cupful of butter, add one-half cupful of sugar and mix until well blended. Beat in two-thirds of a cupful of honey and heat in a double boiler, beating until well blended. Beat four egg yolks until thick, add the remainder of the lemon, turn into the mixture and cook until thick. Add the juice of two lemons and stir until the mixture is like thick cream. This will keep if put into covered jelly glasses. Is very nice for cake or sandwich filling.

WAYS OF SERVING POPCORN.

Happiness is the natural and the normal; it is one of the concomitants of righteousness, which means living in right relations with the laws of our being and the laws of the universe about us. No clear-thinking man or woman can be an apostle of despair.

First pop the corn. Corn should be popped over a hot fire, but care should be taken not to scorch the grains. If a wire popper is used, hold it far enough from the heat to prevent burning. The right degree of heat should make good corn pop in about a minute and a half. Too strong heat will cause some of the kernels to pop sooner, but many will not pop at all. If corn pops well the bulk should be increased 20 times.

Do not throw away the "old bachelors" (those that won't pop), but put them through the coffee mill or meat grinder and serve as a breakfast food; they give variety and are far superior to many breakfast foods.

Sugared popcorn is another nice confection. Make a syrup by boiling together two cupfuls of sugar and one of water until the sirup hardens in cold water. Pour this sirup over six quarts of popped corn and stir until the grains are well coated.

A handful of fluffy white kernels of well popped corn will add to many desserts or entrees.

Well popped corn, with cream and sugar, makes a most appetizing breakfast dish. When served in this way they may be ground or served whole. As a garnish for corn soup a tablespoonful or two of well-buttered corn on top of the cupful of soup adds to its appearance as well as food value. For chocolate lovers the popcorn coated with chocolate is relished. Take two cupfuls of sugar, half a cupful of cornstarch, two squares of chocolate and a cupful of water. Cook until the sirup hardens when dropped in water. While hot, pour this sirup over four quarts of freshly popped corn and stir well.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Life, or rather life in a continually expanding form, is after all a business, and they who are the most in earnest get from it the most and in turn give the most back to the world again.

Experiments show that cooked rhubarb added to such fruits as strawberries and raspberries makes a preserve of fine quality. Rhubarb being common and cheap, while the berries are not always so, it is a suggestion worth noting. This mixture may take place after the fruits are cooked, but of course the results will be better if both are cooked together when fresh. Use one part of the berries to two parts of rhubarb.

Save all juices from canned fruit, if but a tablespoonful in the jar; mixed with two or three of some other flavor, one will have enough to flavor a pudding sauce, lemonade or baked apples.

Put the last few spoonfuls of horseradish left in the glass into the pickle jar to keep the vinegar in good flavor. Sprinkle dried bread crumbs over string beans cooked for the table, then add paprika and celery salt for seasoning.

When half an onion has been used, turn the cut side down on a small plate, and it will keep fresh for days. A bunch of parsley, if washed and put into a mason jar, sealed air-tight, will keep fresh and crisp for two weeks. Leave enough water clinging to the leaves to keep them moist.

Apple juice and pulp combines well with many fruits and berries, extending the delicate flavor of choice fruit and reducing the cost which might otherwise be prohibitive.

A slice of pineapple will flavor a large dish of milder fruit; so will quinces and oranges combine with apples for marmalade.

Apple juice with peach or cherry, strawberry or other fruits which are hard to thicken, makes very good jelly which would otherwise be strupy.

Cranberry juice is another good fruit extender; added to fresh strawberries it makes a beautiful and tasty preserve. Strawberries, when canned, often lose their color, but with cranberries this is overcome.

Quinces cooked with cranberries makes a fine mixture; use one-third cranberries to two-thirds quinces, then proceed as for any jelly.

FOOD FOR THE CHILD.

So make it your intention. With proper comprehension To see the world from every point of view. Smile on if you're defeated, Or smile if you think you're cheated; Smile on and soon the world will smile on you! —Caroline Sumner.

Children are far more restricted in their diet than are grownups, and they are more dependent upon special foods. We all need a diet so balanced that it will produce the highest efficiency, but the food for a growing child must do more than that. The growing child is building new flesh and bone. For this reason the child should have a larger proportion of body-building foods than adults. Milk is the most important; eggs, butter and well-cooked cereals, with top milk, are very important in the diet of the child.

We are told repeatedly by those who have made a study of the diet of the child that no mother should buy a pound of meat until she has purchased a quart of milk for each child in her family.

Dishes made chiefly of milk, meat, fish, poultry and egg, with meat substitutes, form the most important group in the well-balanced ration. Then come cereals and bread; then fats, of which the most important is butter. Do not give children fried foods which are hard to digest. Fruits and vegetables are next; then simple sweets such as dried fruits or pure candies. Candy should always be given at the end of the meal, never before.

Wheat taken from the granary, well washed, soaked over night, then cooked in the same water until well cracked and covered with gluten, is one of the most desirable of foods for growing children. Serve it with top milk.

Gowns That Win Favor in Paris

From present indications, writes a leading fashion correspondent, the Parisienne is not going to adopt any of the fantastic features that appeared in earlier models. She is accepting, however, in a very marked way, certain of the models which have distinct new features without any unbecoming or bizarre silhouette.

The Parisienne is too fond of her own personal appearance to go in for anything that is grotesque. She has worn too many good clothes and has too much personal taste and refinement in dress to go contrary to principles. Thus we find that out of the earlier showings, which carried all kinds of extraordinary hip extensions and queer girdlings, loops and draperies, the chic Parisienne has chosen straight lines, simple waistline beltings, soft colors and the natural silhouette.

This will come as no surprise to those who are close students of fashion in women's dress. Only the extremists were enthusiastic about the marked hip extensions and the complicated draperies.

Czecho-Slavic Idea Proves Success. As prophesied, the Lanvin models in the Czecho-Slavic feeling have proved a success. While these dresses are of marked type, they are not bizarre in any way. In fact, they are most re-finer looking, with delicate thread embroidery in black on white or stone color. The best dressed women in Paris are wearing these gowns, which are of a straight chemise-like cut, but tightly girdled at the waistline with a string tie of the same material, which seemingly is drawn in as tightly as possible around the figure. This gives the appearance of being practically uncorseted, the stomach and hips bulging in a natural manner.

The influence of the Jugo-Slav is quite apparent in the model sketched above, developed in castor-colored velours de laine. A tight bodice and underskirt gives a trouserlike effect.

While the fashions of Jugo-Slav origin were thought by some to be extreme, they really were not. Probably the most remarkable feature about them is the great number of ideas which they embody.

Has Trouserlike Effect.

An example of how a costume that is simple and beautiful has been worked out from the long-coat garment with trouserlike underskirt, which was one of the most conspicuous notes in the Jugo-Slav collection, is a Lanvin model. It was she who first introduced this type of dress.

It is developed in pale castor colored velours de laine, the bottom band, which takes the place of the trouser underskirt, being black broadcloth and the collar of fisher fur, or pekan, as it is called in France. The embroidery is black, with the exception of a touch of red around the pockets, the prevalent fashion of having a breast pocket for the watch and wearing the watch on a fob. Sometimes a little jeweled ornament hangs from the end of the ribbon.

Another of Lanvin's very popular dresses has just come from Paris. It is a simple frock of the type in which a woman will always look well dressed and that will appear to be in the height of the mode for some time to come. This is desirable in these days of expensive fabrics, for even if we make our own dresses we feel that we must use cloth sparingly until there is some readjustment of prices. Then it is a nice thing to have a dress such as this in one's wardrobe, because it fills so many needs. One may shop in it in the early morning hours, walk in the afternoon or stop for tea among the most smartly dressed women and still feel comfortably and suitably dressed.

Coat of Blue Velours.

Paquin makes such a coat of very dark blue wool velours. It has a daring collar of astrachan, the same fur forming an edge down the entire front of the coat and making deep gauntlet cuffs. While this wrap is very simple it is of the type worn over dressy afternoon costumes, as well as a matching coat for the blazer velours or duvetyn dresses. It is smart to have one of these long coats exactly matching the frock.

Paris makes a great feature of very heavy wool embroidery done in a loop stitch, like tapestry. This is sometimes sheared to form little square tufts which stand away from the surface of the fabric a quarter of an inch deep. Sometimes a part of the pattern is clipped and the rest left in a tight loop. All patterns are geometrical and form deep, thick-looking borders on coats, collars and cuffs. To some degree this embroidery resembles a fur. It is almost overdone by Premet, as she uses it on so many models. The idea, however, is interesting and new.

Monkey Fur Still Popular.

Despite its great use last winter, monkey fur continues to be popular. It is very expensive when used in any quantity. As a garniture for dresses and suits it is not considered really smart unless used in the form of deep borders and enveloping collars. Lanvin has a delightful little dress with a deep border of jet black monkey fur at the bottom of the skirt. One of the most successful models from Madeleine is a coat of pearl gray checked in black and trimmed with a wide skirt band and a collar and cuffs of monkey fur. This coat is worn over a black velvet one-piece dress.

As to fur trimmings there is almost no tailored suit that has not fur trimming of some kind. The one-piece tailored dresses, or robe manteaux, are also heavily fur trimmed.

One thing specially to be remarked is the little use of the muff. Possibly the mantle type of wrap has made the muff unnecessary, as the wearer folds the mantle around her and holds it in place; thus it would be very awkward to carry a muff.

THE BIG ORIENTAL TURBANS

Present Craze in Paris Is for Jeweled Arrows and Shades of Green.

The majority of the turbans shown in Paris are large enough to serve as a background for the entire profile from one angle at least. The tendency to wear the oriental turban in modified size has disappeared and the rolling folds of material are as large as any oriental ever wore them and perhaps a trifle larger. Some support underneath, the folds give almost the wide line of a brim. This shape worn very much tilted serves the purpose of the frame.

This is the hat of the hour in the French capital, and two other pet fancies are usually seen at the same time. One is the jeweled arrow thrust through the front of the turban and the other is the favorite color, green. To be quite in the know, the turban must be of one of the shades of light green bordering on jade. In this Paris and New York are of one mind.

Large Bow Is Popular.

On the way from Paris, but not yet popular in this country, is a huge bow of brilliant hued ribbon. It is the latest fad in the land of fashions. Paris is wearing it on all occasions but most frequently when the gown is of somber colored material. A black velvet gown from Paris has a clever touch of black and white plaid silk as an underbody to the Eton jacket, the silk matching the ubiquitous bow. The jacket is cut with rounded fronts and the smashing large bow is placed at the right side, one long streamer falling to below the hem of the peg-top skirt.

Mesh Bags Again.

Not a little speculation is going on in fancy goods and notion circles, and in the jewelry trade as well, as to just what effect the return of the mesh bag vogue is going to have on the future of the beaded article.

Silk nets are embroidered with bright metal.

MOTHER POLAR BEAR.

Mother Polar Bear was all alone and she was talking softly to herself. "Ah," she said, "in such a short time my two little baby bears will come to me. Either one or two will come along and I am waiting for them in this little snug den on the great ice covered water up north.

"I am away from the great world, away where no one can harm my babies, away from everything. But should anyone come near me I would defend my babies and look after them even if it cost me my life.

"I would try to save my life, of course, for I need it to look after my babies, but if that was impossible in order to save them I would save them first and then hope that they would be all right.

"We're a funny lot, we polar bears. We're wild and we are fierce and we are strong.

"In the summer we all live far from the coast and the shore. We're off where there is ice and weather as cold as there can be.

"In the spring we often take long swimming trips out to sea and along the coasts and in the winter we are near the coasts for we must be near food whenever the times become hard.

"They say it is wonderful that we can find food, no matter where we may be, or no matter how terribly hard a year it is.

"Sometimes we've been known to attack human beings in the winter time far up North where the ice was so thick and the food so thin.

"At least, I suppose you would call the food that when there wasn't much of it. But in the spring and in the summer and most of the time we can find food, for we're smart and clever and hard winters and lands and waters where there isn't so much food, will never discourage us.

"For years we have been able to live, and for years more we will live, looking after ourselves and our own, and our tummies and the food we get.

"It Means the Ice."

"How delicious a meal we do have often of perhaps seal or perhaps walrus. Both those are delicacies for any polar bear.

"And we can capture them. We are stronger and we are so clever and so wild and quick we can capture them and kill them and then eat them with relish and with joy.

"But while it is good to think of all the fine meals of walrus and seal I have had, and while it is good to know that there will be more of those meals, the joyful thought I have now is to know that before long my little cubs will arrive.

"And they will be quiet with their old mother while they are young and the winter is hard.

"But they will be strong enough when the spring comes to follow me along and jump right into the icy water after me and swim about in it.

"Sometimes they can jump in very, very young, but I will wait with my cubs until the weather is springlike which means that I will wait until the ice is breaking up into great packs and gigantic pieces.

"Spring to a polar bear doesn't mean warm weather and such things as buds and flowers and soft breezes; it means the ice sailing along in enormous pieces, floating down the rivers and down the coasts of the sea.

"But no one will harm my babies. No, a mother polar bear loves her little cubs and she will protect them with her own life. Nothing is so much to her as their lives.

"Ah, it is so wonderful to wait for them, and soon I will see the little dears, or the little dear as the case may be.

"And when I take them out into the great world I will be able to hold them safely between me and my forelegs when I'm swimming, if there is danger around and if anyone should shoot.

"For, if they were well out of the way by the time the bullet hit me they would be able to swim to safety before they could be captured.

"But I am a quick swimmer and they won't get me. No, old Mother Polar will be safe and so will her precious darlings.

"Ah, the winter," she said to herself, "the cold, cold, bitter winter, how I love it. For it is warm to me, warm to my mother's heart for the little cubs come to me then and they keep Mother Polar's heart so warm and so happy."

ON PRINCIPLE OF BOOMERANG

Airplane Constructed Along Same Lines as the Famous Weapon of Australian Bushmen.

Although an anomaly to go to the primitive savages of Australia for points on an airplane, that was just what was done in the development of flying in the air by humans. The fundamental principle of the plane is both old and simple, having been discovered by the bushmen of the antipodes and embodied by them in the boomerang, which by meeting in its flight the air at a slight angle got a "lift."

The trajectory of the boomerang may be in part horizontal or may even rise as a result of this lift. Any surface that is more or less flat that travels at a slight angle through the air tends to lift. If the section has a slight camber, or convex curve, the lift is increased. Better results are obtained if a body of appreciable thickness is used instead of a thin sheet. These points the Australian discovered.

Investigation will show little difference between the wing section of the modern airplane and a cross section of a boomerang made by the bushmen or whittled by a New York boy after he had visited the circus and had witnessed the stunts of the boomerang throwers.

The resemblance of the boomerang's cross section is closer to a propeller section of an airplane, as a boomerang is a sort of cross between an airplane wing and a propeller.

WOOD LASTS FOR CENTURIES

Oak Buried in Water or Wet Sand Has Proved to Be Practically Indestructible.

Men employed in driving a new gallery in a gold mine at Charlotte Plains, in Victoria, Australia, have made an astonishing discovery. At a depth of 300 feet below ground they have come upon pieces of timber perfectly preserved, which have every appearance of having been saved and shaped by the hand of man.

This timber lies in the bed of an ancient river now being worked for gold, and the timber is oak. Now, oak has the peculiar property of lasting for centuries when buried in water or wet sand. Oak piles have been taken out from under old wooden bridges constructed by the Romans, and found as sound as when they were put there, nearly 2,000 years ago. Oak, known as bog oak, is found buried in Irish peat bogs, and is perfectly black, intensely hard, and very valuable. Just before the world's war it was discovered that the bed of the river Moksha, in Russia, for a length of over 400 miles, is simply full of magnificent old oak trees bedded in sand. The river is shallow, and broad, and the oak can easily be raised.

Smaller deposits are found in England. There is a pool in the river Dart, known from time immemorial as Oak pool, in the bottom of which are masses of fine old oak. The strange thing is that there are no oak trees near the spot at present.

Vast Waste Desert.

The great Sahara desert covers the major part of northern Africa, consisting of 3,500,000 square miles—an arid region as large as the whole of Europe. From 100 feet below sea level it rises in one instance to 8,000 feet above, and some of its elevations are covered with snow for three months of the year. Most of it, however, is a dry, sandy waste, dotted here and there with an oasis where "drink" may be secured. The winds are all very hot and dry, while rain is almost unknown.

Paying Federal Officials.

The president of the United States is paid by settlement warrant, which is practically the same as a check. This warrant is sent to him by messenger from the treasury twice a month. Senators and representatives are paid either by check or cash as they personally desire through congressional disbursement checks. When they are paid in cash they receive crisp, new bills, as does nearly every one who lives in Washington.

Lost a Husband.

"Maud is a victim of the stock market."

"You don't mean to say she speculated?"

"No, but her fiance did, and the engagement is broken."

You've Seen 'Em.

"What did you do last night?"

"Oh, I read for a couple of hours."

"I thought you were going to the movies."

"I did go. Ninety per cent of the feature consisted of subtitles."

Sunday, in spite of cloudy weather, was a blessed day with Bethany. The subject of the coming King of Glory was carefully, thoughtfully and joyfully considered. The thought of our Blessed Lord's return with all the holy angels and His redeemed Saints brought such gladness and praise to the hearts of the people that with one accord they felt that it was good for them to be there. The glorious regime of this Competent King over the earth for a thousand years will be the subject for next Sunday. All who desire a better knowledge of the millennial period are heartily urged to be present.

THEOSOPHY

H. C. L. SALE

This sale, which is to be opened at 1 o'clock, Feb. 28, at 41 N. Baldwin avenue, is for the purpose of defraying the high cost of living and swelling the coffers of the Home Relief Fund.

The home cooked food will be made with Economy flour, and is going to be good, too.

If your dresses don't suit your complexion donate them to our sale and we will sell them to some one with different coloring.

If your shoes fit, put them on, but if they pinch you let us sell them to some one who will find them more comfortable.

Your hat may not become you, but there are others—and you may scorn your silk stockings on account of a few darns, but some one may like the "darned" old things.

Now, that present from Aunt Jemima may seem hideous to you, but your neighbor may think it a dream.

So bring whatever you can't use (new or old) to 41 N. Baldwin avenue on Saturday morning, Feb. 28, and return in the afternoon ready to spend your money in a good cause.

Afternoon tea will be served at a reasonable rate.

LOCAL ITEMS

Miss Jean Woodward has returned from a week's visit in San Francisco and the Bay cities.

Mrs. Milton Steinberger was one of the guests on Tuesday at an afternoon tea given by Mrs. Sybil Jones of Pasadena. Mrs. Jones is well known as an author.

At a recent dansant tea given in Hollywood the engagement was announced of Miss Zara Zahn of Santa Monica and Mr. Robert Rigney of Masinette, Arizona. Mr. Rigney's parents and his sister, Miss Phyllis, have recently come to Sierra Madre to make their home.

Charles T. Askew, wife and son are now residents of Sierra Madre. Mr. Askew recently sold his ranch at Baldwin Park and a good many of the Southern editors will recall him as being head salesman of Zellerbach Paper company of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Jones and daughter, May, and Miss Annie Marker of London, Canada, are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Snell on Canyon avenue. They will remain several weeks.

J. Rashaian of Chicago, now living at 401 Auburn avenue, has accepted a position in Bergein Bros. furniture store and will have charge of the upholstery department.

Harry Bleeker came down from Davis Agricultural college and spent last week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bleeker, on East Central avenue.

Mrs. F. H. Manlove and daughter, Ruth, of St. Louis are spending the winter with Mrs. Manlove's sister, Miss Leah Fletcher, on West Highland.

Last Saturday evening Col. W. H. Holabird was a guest at a banquet which was given by the Throop Institute at the Valley Hunt club. About seventy-five were present.

Mrs. Milton Steinberger will leave tomorrow morning for a week at Murietta Springs.

CITY TRUSTEE MEETING

At the regular meeting of the City Trustees last night the meeting was adjourned until Saturday night, delaying for two days the notification to the Pacific Electric Railway company to repair the streets torn up in track work.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Miss Violet Gerson celebrated her eighth birthday by giving a birthday party at the home of her parents, Valleyview, on East Grand avenue, yesterday afternoon.

Outdoor and indoor games were indulged in and light refreshments were served. Everybody had a splendid time.

The little guests present, besides her sisters, Dorothea, Rose and Lillian, were: Marion Barrett, Dorothea Scott, Phyllis, Gladys and Harriet Settle, Hazel Udell and Virginia Yerxa.

DANCE BY AMERICAN LEGION ON WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

For the purpose of swelling the funds of Monrovia Post No. 44, American Legion, the members of that organization have arranged to give a benefit dance at the I. O. O. F. hall, Monrovia, Saturday evening, February 21. Music will be furnished by the famous "Discord Four" orchestra.

At the present time the funds of the organization are low and it is desired to increase the fund immediately to take care of emergency cases of ex-service men which may be brought before the body.

Many special features have been arranged for the dance and with the excellent music a good time is assured.

All are cordially invited to attend.

BE KIND TO THE BIRDS

On Wednesday, Miss Annie Green attended the dinner given by the State Audubon society at Los Angeles. John Burroughs, who is spending the winter at La Jolla, was the guest of honor. One hundred and thirty plates were laid.

The great naturalist paid a wonderful tribute to the California meadowlark, of which there are so many in Sierra Madre. Dr. Edwards, who is superintendent of Nature Study in the Los Angeles schools, gave a demonstration of the way he presents the work to the children. Miss Green reports the meeting as one of great interest.

SOCIAL MEETING

The Ladies Aid society of the Congregational church will hold the regular social meeting in the church parlors Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 17.

A good attendance is desired as there is work to be done on three comfortable ladies are tying.

Mrs. F. D. Bleeker and J. D. Sparks will be hostesses for the afternoon.

PICNIC SUPPER

The Win-one club met last Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. James Forshaw, and about ten members were present.

After a business session, a picnic supper was served by Misses Florence Evans, Lucile Ladd and Carmen Hibbs. Miss Eleanor Jones of Pasadena was a guest of the club.

IOWA PICNIC

The annual reunion and picnic of formerly of Iowa people will be held at Lincoln Park (formerly Eastlake Park) Los Angeles, Saturday, July 21. All former residents or visitors from Iowa are urged to attend.

NARROW ESCAPE

Mr. W. S. Wright and Mrs. Tyson, an elderly couple from South Pasadena, had a miraculous escape from death Monday evening when their automobile was struck by the Sierra Madre car leaving Los Angeles at 6:42 p. m.

The accident occurred immediately in front of the automobile supply station on Huntington Drive, north of Judge Graves' large estate. According to all accounts, Mr. Wright missed the regular crossing and endeavored to drive his machine across the railroad tracks. He passed over the local El Moline car tracks just as the Sierra Madre car hove in sight, when he tried to reverse and back away, but was struck by the electric car and dragged twenty or thirty feet, while the fore part of his machine was wedged between the car trucks.

Both occupants of the machine were tumbled into one corner of the front seat and escaped without a scratch, although they were somewhat shaken up. The impact broke off the front step of the electric car and badly damaged the automobile, tearing off the left front wheel, breaking the axle, lamps, running board and crushing the front portion.

The passengers on the electric car, besides being almost jolted out of their seats by the sudden slowing down of the car, were thrown into a wild panic, many believing the occupants of the machine were being ground to death underneath them, as one of the wheels and rubber tires of the automobile were being run over and crushed.

G. G. Pfeil, motorman, made desperate efforts to stop, but, owing to the rate his car was traveling, found it impossible until he had passed several car lengths.

Mrs. Tyson remained perfectly cool during the incident. After she and Mr. Wright were assisted out of the wrecked machine, she stated that Mr. Wright was unable to see well at night, and that at first he thought he was on a regular cross road.

Jack Richey was conductor of the train at the time. The electric car arrived in Sierra Madre an hour late. No complaints were heard from the passengers, whose nerves were hardly back to normal after their exciting experience.

INCOME TAX RETURNS COMING IN SLOWLY

In a statement made to the press today by Collector of Internal Revenue John P. Carter, he lays particular stress on the fact that income tax returns to be filed by corporations, partnerships and individuals subject to the provisions of the income tax law are not being received at his office at this time as fast as they should be. The blank forms of return were mailed to all taxpayers of record about the middle of the month of January, and although three weeks time has elapsed since the date of mailing the forms, the number received has been alarmingly small.

The collector and his deputies are anxious and willing to assist taxpayers in the preparation of their returns but it will be impossible to furnish this assistance unless the taxpayers ask for it now rather than wait until the last ten days or two weeks prior to March 15th. It will be readily seen that if the majority of taxpayers postpone the filing of their returns until within the month of March that practically no assistance can be given them on account of the large number of people who will be desirous of filing returns at that time.

The collector suggests that as many who will be required to file returns as possible file their returns now and not wait until the last moment. Those that wait to perform this duty sometimes wait too long and as a consequence are subjected to the severe penalties denounced in the law.

PLANTS 100,000 TREES IN ANGELES FOREST

County Forester Flintham has completed the planting of the first hundred thousand trees in the Angeles forest reserve, the first stage of the county's plan of reforestation in conjunction with the other methods of flood control.

The area covered in the aggregate is 500 acres, scattered in several canyons, including the Big and Little Dalton and the San Dimas canyons. The forester now has four camps and crews in operation.

The forester has received 200,000 trees from the east which are to be planted along the edges of streams and rivers in connection with the flood control work. They are osage orange and locust trees, which the forester says are far superior to willows when used as a break for the water during floodtime.

In two years the osage orange will make a strong mat that will prevent washing on the banks of streams, or along the fencing and revetment work now being put in by the flood control department. The forester is rushing out this work as rapidly as possible.

The honey locust and black locust, together with osage orange, will be planted on the channel work of the San Dimas, Big and Little Dalton washes, the San Gabriel, Big Tejuja, Verdugo and other smaller streams.

Lost Her Pie.

In an effort to combat the high cost of eating, a girl living on the Illinois car line sometimes carries a middy lunch. Recently in fixing up her lunch she failed to put in a small pie, so rather than untie the package she simply put the pie in a paper sack and put it in a pocket of her coat. She had to stand all the way downtown and in some manner the pie got crowded out of her pocket so that when she started to leave the car the pie fell out of the sack face down on the floor of the car. And it was a soft berry pie, too.—Indianapolis News.

BOSCHEE'S SYRUP.

A cold is probably the most common of all disorders and when neglected is apt to be most dangerous. Statistics show that more than three times as many people died from influenza last year, as were killed in the greatest war the world has ever known. For the last fifty-three years Bosch's Syrup has been used for coughs, bronchitis, colds, throat irritation and especially lung troubles. It gives the patient a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expectoration in the morning. Made in America and used in the homes of thousands of families all over the civilized world. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

TARZAN AND THE JEWELS OF OPAR

NUMA, THE LION, STRODE MAJESTICALLY INTO VIEW

Synopsis.—Hiding in the jungle after killing his captain in a fit of brooding madness, Lieut. Albert Werper, Belgian officer, is captured by Achmet Zek, Arab slave raider, who spares his life and proposes to him a scheme to kidnap Jane, wife of Tarzan (Lord Greystoke) and sell her into slavery. Werper accepts. Posing as Jules Precourt, French traveler, Werper is hospitably received by the Greystokes. He learns his host is in financial straits and is planning an expedition to the treasure vaults of Opar to procure gold. Werper informs Achmet Zek of the opportunity to seize Lady Greystoke, and prepares to follow Tarzan to learn the secret of Opar.

CHAPTER II.—Continued.

The Belgian did not have long to wait, for the following day his emissary returned with word that Tarzan and a party of fifty Waziri warriors had set out toward the southeast early in the morning.

Werper called his head man to him, after writing a long letter to Achmet Zek. This letter he handed to the head man.

"Send a runner at once to Achmet Zek with this," he instructed the head man. "Remain here in camp awaiting further instructions from him or from me. If any come from the bungalow of the Englishman, tell them that I am very ill within my tent and can see no one. Now, give me six porters and six askaris—the strongest and bravest of the safari—and I will march after the Englishman and discover where his gold is hidden."

And so it was that as Tarzan, stripped to the loincloth and armed after the primitive fashion he best loved, led his loyal Waziri toward the dead city of Opar, Werper, the renegade, haunted his trail through the long, hot days, and camped close behind him by night.

And as they marched, Achmet Zek rode with his entire following southward toward the Greystoke farm.

To Tarzan of the Apes the expedition was in the nature of a holiday outing. His civilization was at best but an outward veneer which he gladly peeled off with his uncomfortable European clothes whenever any reasonable pretext presented itself. It was a woman's love which kept Tarzan even to the semblance of civilization—a condition for which familiarity had bred contempt. He hated the shams and the hypocrisies of it and with the clear vision of an unspoiled mind he had penetrated to the rotten core of the heart of the thing—the cowardly greed for peace and ease and the safeguarding of property rights.

And so Tarzan always came back to nature in the spirit of a lover keeping a long-deferred tryst after a period behind prison walls. His Waziri, at merriment, were more civilized than he. They cooked their meat before they ate it and they shunned many articles of food as unclean that Tarzan had eaten with gusto all his life, and so insidious is the virus of hypocrisy that even the stalwart ape-man hesitated to give rein to his natural longings before them. He ate burnt flesh when he would have preferred it raw and unspiced, and he brought down game with arrow or spear when he would rather have leaped upon it from ambush and sunk his strong teeth in its jugular; but at last the call of the milk of the savage mother that had suckled him in infancy rose to an insistent demand—he craved the hot blood of a fresh kill and his muscles yearned to pit themselves against the savage jungle in the battle for existence that had been his sole birthright for the first twenty years of his life.

Moved by these vague yet all-powerful urges the ape-man lay awake one night in the little thorn boma that protected, in a way, his party from the depredations of the great carnivora of the jungle. A single warrior stood sleepy guard beside the fire that yellow eyes out of the darkness beyond the camp made imperative. The moans and the coughing of the big cats mingled with the myriad noises of the lesser denizens of the jungle to fan the savage flame in the breast of this savage English lord. He tossed upon his bed of grasses, sleepless, for an hour and then he rose, noiseless as a wraith, and while the Waziri's back was turned, vaulted the boma wall in the face of the flaming eyes, swung silently into a great tree and was gone.

For a time in sheer exuberance of animal spirit he raced swiftly through the middle terrace, swinging perilously across wide spans from one jungle giant to the next, and then he clambered upward to the swaying, lesser boughs of the upper terrace where the moon shone full upon him and the air was stirred by little breezes and death lurked ready in each frail branch. Here he paused and raised his face to Goro, the moon. With uplifted arm he stood, the cry of the bull ape quivering upon his lips, yet he remained silent lest he arouse his faithful Waziri, who were all too familiar with the hideous challenge of their master.

And then he went on more slowly and with greater stealth and caution, for now Tarzan of the Apes was seeking a kill. Down to the ground he came in the utter blackness of the close-set boles and the overhanging verdure of the jungle. He stooped from time to time and put his nose close to earth. He sought and found a wide game trail and at last his nostrils were rewarded with the scent of the fresh spoor of Bara, the deer. Tarzan's mouth watered and a low growl escaped his patrician lips. Sloughed from him was the last vestige of artificial caste—once again he was the primeval hunter—the first man—the highest caste type of the human race. Up wind he followed the elusive spoor with sense of perception so transcending that of ordinary man as to be inconceivable to us.

Presently the body scent of the deer told Tarzan that his prey was close at hand. It sent him into the trees again—into the lower terrace where he could watch the ground below and catch with ears and nose the first intimation of actual contact with his quarry. Nor was it long before the ape-man came upon Bara standing alert at the edge of a moon-bathed clearing. Noiselessly Tarzan crept through the trees until he was directly over the deer. In the ape-man's hand was the long hunting knife of his father and in his heart the blood lust of the carnivore. Just for an instant he poised above the unsuspecting Bara and then he launched himself downward upon the sleek back. The impact of his weight carried the deer to his knees and before the animal could regain its feet the knife had found its heart. As Tarzan rose upon the body of his kill to scream forth his hideous victory cry into the face of the moon the wind carried to his nostrils something which froze him to statuesque immobility and silence. His savage eyes blazed into the direction from which the wind had borne down the warning to him and a moment later the grasses at one side of the clearing parted and Numa, the lion, strode majestically into view.

From the lips of the ape-man broke a rumbling growl of warning. Numa answered but he did not advance. Instead he stood waving his tail gently to and fro, and presently Tarzan squatted upon his kill and cut a generous portion from a hind quarter. Numa eyed him with growing resentment and rage as, between mouthfuls, the ape-man growled out his savage warnings. Now this particular lion had never before come in contact with Tarzan of the Apes and he was much mystified. Here was the appearance and the scent of a man-thing and Numa had tasted human flesh and learned that though not the most palatable it was certainly by far the easiest to secure, yet there was that in the bestial growls of the strange creature which reminded him of formidable antagonists and gave him pause, while his hunger and the odor of the hot flesh of Bara goaded him almost to madness. At last Numa could stand it no longer. His tail shot suddenly erect and at the same instant the wary ape-man, knowing all too well what the signal portended, grasped the remainder of the deer's hind quarter between his teeth and leaped into a nearby tree as Numa charged him with all the speed and a sufficient semblance of the weight of an express train.

Tarzan's retreat was no indication that he felt fear. Jungle life is ordered along different lines than ours and different standards prevail. Had Tarzan been famished he would, doubtless, have stood his ground and met the lion's charge. He had done the thing before upon more than one occasion, just as in the past he had charged lions himself; but tonight he was far from famished and in the hind quarter he had carried off with him was more raw flesh than he could eat; yet it was with no equanimity that he looked down upon Numa rending the flesh of Tarzan's kill. The presumption of this strange Numa must be punished! And forthwith Tarzan set out to make life miserable for the big cat. Close by were many trees bearing large, hard fruits and to one of these the ape-man swung with the agility of a squirrel. Then commenced a bombardment which brought forth earth-shaking roars from Numa. It was impossible for the tawny cat to eat under that hail of missiles—he could but roar and growl and dodge and eventually he was driven away entirely from the carcass of Bara, the deer. He went roaring and resentful; but in the very center of the clearing his voice was suddenly hushed and Tarzan saw the great head lower and flatten out, the body crouch and the long tail quiver, as the beast slunk cautiously toward the trees upon the opposite side.

Immediately Tarzan was alert. He lifted his head and sniffed the slow, jungle breeze. What was it that had attracted Numa's attention and taken him soft-footed and silent away from the scene of his discomfiture? Just as the lion disappeared among the trees beyond the clearing Tarzan caught upon the down-coming wind the explanation of his new interest—the scent spoor of man was wafted strongly to the sensitive nostrils. Caching the remainder of the deer's hind quarter in the crotch of a tree the ape-man moved through the trees, the shadow of a wraith. The savage cat and the savage man saw Numa's quarry almost simultaneously, though both had known before it came within the vision of their eyes that it was a black man. Their sensitive nostrils had told them this much and Tarzan had told him that the scent spoor was that of a stranger—old and a male, for race and sex and age each has its own distinctive scent. It was an old man that made his way alone through the gloomy jungle, a wrinkled, dried up little old man, hideously scarred and tattooed and strangely garbed, with the skin of a hyena about his shoulders and the dried head mounted upon his gray pate. Tarzan recognized the earmarks of the witch-doctor and awaited Numa's charge with a feeling of pleasurable anticipation, for the ape-man had no love for witch-doctors; but in the instant that Numa did charge, the white man suddenly recalled that the lion had stolen his kill a few minutes before and that revenge is sweet.

The first intimation the black man had that he was in danger was the crash of twigs as Numa charged through the bushes into the game trail not twenty yards behind him. Then he turned to see a huge, black-maned lion racing toward him, and even as he turned, Numa seized him. At the same instant the ape-man, dropped from an overhanging limb full upon the lion's back and as he alighted he plunged his knife into the tawny side behind the left shoulder, tangled the fingers of his right hand in the long mane, buried his teeth in Numa's neck and wound his powerful legs about the beast's torso. With a roar of pain and rage, Numa reared up and fell backward upon the ape-man; but still the mighty man-thing clung to his hold and repeatedly the long knife plunged deeply into his side. Over and over rolled Numa, the lion, clawing and biting at the air, roaring and growling horribly in savage attempt to reach the thing upon his back. More than once was Tarzan almost brushed from his hold. He was battered and bruised and covered with blood from Numa and dirt from the trail, yet not for an instant did he lessen the ferocity of his mad attack nor his grim hold upon the back of his antagonist. Where he had fallen beneath the spring of the lion the witch-doctor lay, torn and bleeding, unable to drag himself away and watched the terrific battle between these two lords of the jungle. His sunken eyes glittered and his wrinkled lips moved over toothless gums as he mumbled weird incantations to the demons of his cult.

For a time he felt no doubt as to the outcome—the strange white man must certainly succumb to terrible Numa—whoever heard of a lone man armed only with a knife slaying so mighty a beast! Yet presently the old black man's eyes went wider and he commenced to have his doubts and misgivings. What wonderful sort of creature was this that battled with Numa and held his own despite the mighty muscles of the king of beasts? Then slowly there dawned in those sunken eyes, gleaming so brightly from the scarred and wrinkled face, the light of a dawning recollection. It was the picture of a lithe, white-skinned youth swinging through the trees in company with a band of huge apes, and the old eyes blinked and a great fear came into them—the superstitious fear of one who believes in ghosts and spirits and demons.

And came the time once more when the witch-doctor no longer doubted the outcome of the duel, yet his first judgment was reversed, for now he knew that the jungle god would slay Numa and the old black was even more terrified of his own impending fate at the hands of the victor than he had been by the sure and sudden death which the triumphant lion would have meted out to him. He saw the lion weaken from loss of blood. He saw the mighty limbs tremble and stagger and at last he saw the beast sink down to rise no more. He saw the forest god or demon rise from the vanquished foe and, placing a foot upon the still quivering carcass, raise his face to the moon and bay out a hideous cry that froze the ebbing blood in the veins of the witch-doctor.

CHAPTER III.

Prophecy and Fulfillment.

Then Tarzan turned his attention to the man. He had not slain Numa to save the negro—he had merely done it in revenge upon the lion; but now that he saw the old man lying helpless and dying before him something akin to pity touched his savage heart. He stooped and felt of the witch-doctor's wounds and stanching the flow of blood.

"Who are you?" asked the old man in a trembling voice.

"I am Tarzan—Tarzan of the Apes," replied the ape-man and not without a greater touch of pride than he would have said, "I am John Clayton, Lord Greystoke."

The witch-doctor shook convulsively and closed his eyes. When he opened them again there was in them a resignation to whatever horrible fate awaited him at the hands of this feared demon of the woods. "Why do you not kill me?" he asked.

What Wonderful Sort of Creature Was This?

"Why should I kill you?" inquired Tarzan. "You have not harmed me, and anyway you are already dying. Numa, the lion, has killed you. I would save you if I could, but that cannot be done. Why did you think I would kill you?"

For a moment the old man was silent. When he spoke it was evidently after some little effort to muster his courage. "I know you of old," he said, "when you ranged the jungle in the country of Mbonga, the chief. I was already a witch-doctor when you slew Kulonga and the others, and when you robbed our huts and our poison pot. At first I did not remember you; but at last I did—the white, skinned ape that lived with the hairy apes and made life miserable in the village of Mbonga, the chief—the forest god—the Munango-Keewati for whom we set food outside our gates and who came and ate it. Tell me before I die—are you man or devil?"

Tarzan laughed. "I am a man," he said.

The old fellow sighed and shook his head. "You have tried to save me from Numa," he said. "For that I shall reward you. I am a great witch-doctor. Listen to me, white man! I see bad days ahead of you. It is writ in my own blood which I have smeared upon my palm. A god greater even than you will rise up and strike you down. Turn back, Munango-Keewati! Turn back before it is too late. Danger lies ahead of you and danger lurks behind; but greater is the danger before. I see—!" He paused and drew a long, gasping breath. Then he crumpled into a little, wrinkled heap and died. Tarzan wondered what else he had seen.

It was very late when the ape-man re-entered the boma and lay down among his black warriors. None had seen him go and none saw him return. He thought about the warning of the old witch-doctor before he fell asleep and he thought of it again after he awoke; but he did not turn back, for he was unafraid, though had he known what lay in store for one he loved most in all the world he would have flown through the trees to her side and allowed the gold of Opar to remain forever hidden in its forgotten storehouse.

After LaGrippe Troubles of Stomach and Liver

Los Angeles, Calif.—"I will gladly tell of the relief and cure Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery gave me. I was sick with troubles of stomach, liver, etc., and La Grippe with all its attending ailments. When all else failed Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery did the good work. I also took Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets for biliousness with grand success. I write with gratitude to tell others of the relief that is in store for them. Do not delay but hasten to get the above remedies if suffering from any indisposition."—SAMUEL KALISKY, 978 Euclid Ave.

Sick-Headache, Indigestion, Biliousness

Stockton, Calif.—"For constipation, for sick headache, for an inactive liver, for indigestion and biliousness, there is nothing to equal Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I have tried other things but like the 'Pellets' best of any."—Mrs. F. CAMPFIELD, 329 S. Grant St.

Little Friends of the Liver

The liver is the regulator of health. If the liver is active and well, good health and happiness prevail; but once you allow your liver to get torpid and sluggish, life becomes a misery. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, Constipation, Headaches and Melancholy assail you, resulting in lack of energy, loss of memory and ill health; but remember Carter's Little Liver Pills touch the liver and correct all liver ills.

THE MISERY OF BACKACHE

Removed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Muskegon, Mich.—"For six years I was so weak in my back at times that I could hardly walk. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me and it made me good and strong again so that I am able to do all my work. I highly recommend your medicine and tell everyone I meet what it did for me."

Woman's Precious Gift

The one which she should most zealously guard is her health, but she often neglects to do so in season until some ailment peculiar to her sex has fastened itself upon her. When so affected women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a remedy that has been wonderfully successful in restoring health to suffering women.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Was Going Down-Hill

Mrs. Bergman's Friends Were Worried, but Doan's Brought Remarkable Recovery From Kidney Complaint.

"I couldn't sit down without putting a pillow behind my back," says Mrs. Ole Bergman, 820 Pennsylvania St., Gary, Ind. "When I bent over it felt as though somebody had stuck a knife right into my back and I would often fall to the floor. The kidney secretions made me get up four and five times a night. There would be only a small amount, which would burn so that I would almost scream. Before long my body bloated and my feet were so swollen that I couldn't wear my shoes. My skin looked shiny and when I pressed it down it left a dent. I had chills and fever. Sometimes I would sweat so that I could fairly wring the water out of my clothes. Everybody said I was going down-hill fast. In two months I lost fifteen pounds and was discouraged. By the time I had finished three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills I was entirely cured and I have enjoyed the best of health ever since."

BELCHING

Acid-Stomach

Let EATONIC, the wonderful modern stomach remedy, give you quick relief from disgusting belching, food-repeating, indigestion, bloated, gassy stomach, dyspepsia, heartburn and other stomach troubles. They are all caused by Acid-Stomach from which about nine people out of ten suffer in one way or another. One writes as follows: "Before I used EATONIC, I could not eat a bite without belching it right up, sour and bitter. I have not had a bit of trouble since the first tablet."

Millions are victims of Acid-Stomach without knowing it. They are weak and ailing, have poor digestion, bodies improperly nourished although they may eat heartily. Grave disorders are likely to follow if an acid-stomach is neglected. Cirrhosis of the liver, intestinal congestion, gastric catarrh of the stomach—these are only a few of the many ailments often caused by Acid-Stomach.

A sufferer from Catarrh of the Stomach of 11 years' standing writes: "I had catarrh of the stomach for 11 long years and I never found anything to do me any good—just temporary relief—until I used EATONIC. It is a wonderful remedy and I do not want to be without it."

If you are not feeling quite right—lack energy and enthusiasm and don't know just where to locate the trouble—try EATONIC and see how much better you will feel in every way.

At all drug stores—a big box for 50c and four money back if you are not satisfied.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

PERSHING WRITES TO SCOUTS

General John J. Pershing has always been a strong friend of the Boy Scouts of America.

He knows to the full the value of the many-sided service they gave in the war.

He knows the value of scout training in producing a well-equipped manhood, for there were a hundred thousand former scouts in the army in France.

General Pershing has sent this letter to the president of the Boy Scouts of America, urging them "to remember":

"On July 25th, last year, while we were in the midst of the desperate battle of the Marne, I sent a greeting to the Boy Scouts of America from our soldiers in France, and urged them to keep faith with the scout laws.

"Those were days when old and young realized the necessity for every one to serve the country.

"Today, without the pressure of a great war to hold our attention upon the necessity of good citizenship, it is important that the lessons of the war in patriotism and devotion be always borne in mind, as the obligations in peace time are as urgent as in war. Let there be no relaxation in your efforts."

HOW SCOUTING AIDS PARENTS.

Here are two sample remarks made by a Boy Scout and by his father, each without the knowledge of the other, after a father and son hike. The scout said:

"I never knew what a darned good fellow my father was till he came here and camped with me. He always seemed like a stern man, whose big idea was to punish me when I was not good, and then I did not want to be good. But now he has been here, and we have been fishing together, and he has shown me a lot of interesting things that I never knew before, and that I never would suppose he knew. Now all of a sudden he seems like a chum of mine. I hope he'll keep right on coming up."

Within an hour the father of the same boy had said: "I've just realized my boy for the first time. Say, he isn't a baby any more, and I've been handling him like one. I'm going to change my tactics and keep on knowing him better."

On these hikes the boy entertains his father at the camp and at the other doings. He prepares the tent for him, sharing his own, which as other may share but his father.

HE CAN TALK FOR MILES.

The Scout Who Knows the Code Can Easily Semaphore a Message.

BOY SCOUT TROOPS IN MILL.

One of the most interesting letters that have ever come to the national headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America contained the applications of five troops of boys employed in cotton mills in Georgia.

Southwest LaGrange is the post office center for the four communities where these great mills are located. There is one troop each in the Unity Cotton mills, the Unity Spinning mills and the Elm City mills and two troops for the Hillside Cotton mills.

These lads who would be scouts have a vision of the future good citizenship upon which America must rely. The Fuller E. Callaway company has provided an auditorium, to be arranged in five separate compartments, one for each troop. About 20 of the men in the mills will give time to helping the boy scouts in the program.

SCOUTS' DAILY GOOD TURNS.

The boy scouts in Troop No. 21, of New Haven, Conn., cleaned the church, took up the carpet and carried out the accumulation of ashes in the cellar.

In Paducah, Ky., there are six large monuments Boy scouts, noting that they looked rather crusty, took it upon themselves to clean and polish these and keep them clean in the future. Special troops have been assigned to such monument. One troop is responsible for painting the city flagpole and keeping it shining.

WONDERLAND of PAPUA

Mountain Children in Raincoats of Leaves.

AUSTRALIA being considered a continent, then Papua (British New Guinea) is the largest island in the world. This territory is made up of the mainland of Papua itself and many small island groups. Papua lies to the north of Australia, and includes the much-talked-of territory formerly called German New Guinea. It is a land of wonderful scenery, of strange peoples, of the grandest commercial possibilities. It is the richest asset of the commonwealth of Australia, writes Thomas J. McMahon in the Illustrated London News.

Through the center of the island runs a great mountain chain, termed the central mountains, many of the summits running from 6,000 to 10,000 feet in height. These mountains are covered all the year round to the utmost peaks with the most vivid verdure. Under the bright blue skies of the tropics and the flashing sun, they are at all times grandly imposing, standing out, as they do, like masses of burnished gold. Away in the summits, seldom traversed by the white man, are most uncommon scenic beauties. The effects of sunlight and mists to be seen in looking over the great valleys are wonderful in the extreme. Such mist effects are not to be found in any other part of the world. Some day tourists will flock to Papua and to the wonderland of its mountains. The mists are remarkable, coming and going, folding and spreading, rising and falling, changing from a snow-white to gray, and sometimes in the flashing of sunbeams to brighter colors. At times with magic suddenness the mists vanish, leaving the mountain tops above and valleys below standing out sharp and clear, and revealing the great red gaps in the hillsides, from the amazing landfalls that are ever going on, accompanied by noise like the booming of great artillery.

Mountain Villages and Valleys.

Round about and all along the mountain-sides are hundreds of small native villages—brown spots for all the world like the nests of some giant bird. These villages are perched on the ends of spurs, and even on the very brink of precipices, and are approached only by hidden tracks, such is the caution of the natives to guard against the sudden appearance of any tribal enemy. The valleys are superb as seen from the mountain spurs and looking over the dense, dark jungles, through which are streaked flashing bands of silver, the courses of the mighty rivers so numerous in Papua. Beginning in some mountain torrent—some waterfall, perhaps—these wide, swift-flowing rivers rush to the sea through jungles that are thickly planted with an amazing variety of commercial timbers, and from which some day soon thousands of sawmills will be sending to the countries of the empire immense quantities of timber and the pulp for paper.

The mountain-sides are walls of moss and fern. Giant trees of immense girth shoot up, the branches thickly festooned with bright flowering creepers, the great trunks gripped by monster vines with powerful clinging stems, and leaves whose length and breadth are measured in feet. High in the branches sounds the strange, unmusical caw of the gorgeous Bird of Paradise; for this bird of the most brilliant plumage—more brilliant than any other bird in the world—is, after all, but of the mean, low family of the common crow. Papua is the only country in the world that knows it is the home of the Bird of Paradise. There is a wide variety, and the law protects the bird with such severity that a very heavy punishment is inflicted for shooting it, or even for stealing its feathers. No sale of the feathers under any circumstances is allowed, and customs officers search tourists' luggage very diligently for any hidden piece of plumage. The wing or tail of a bird will be worth hundreds of pounds—one reason why they are seldom seen in ladies' bonnets nowadays.

Some Wonderful Insects.

In this wonderland of Papua is found the island's specialty, the giant butterfly. These beautiful, many-colored insects measure from twelve to eighteen inches from wing-tip to wing-tip, and they have bodies the size of a small bird. Specimens of these butterflies are to be seen in the collection of the late Baron Rothschild, who sent out to Papua a scientist to collect rare insects and birds. Another marvelous insect, of the cricket class, is what is popularly called the "Six o'clock" beetle. This little creature exists abundantly, and is really wonderful in its habits. It gets its name from the fact that every night at precisely six o'clock it gives forth a resonant, far-reaching chirp, exactly like a loud electric bell. At six o'clock one will begin, and in a few minutes the mountains will resound with the deafening noise of these punctual timekeepers. But long after the insects have ceased to chirp, the amazing echoes of the hills will throw back the sounds, lasting for several minutes. Travellers in doubt as to the correct time set their watches to this insect's evening chirp.

A companionable little mite also known only to the mountains of Papua is the "Bell-frog," which produces the notes of a bell, sweet, soft, and clear, and all day long can be heard the musical and friendly tinkle. A tiny gray frog from under a stone is responsible, and gives out its cheerful sound as a warning that its home is not to be disturbed by a careless foot.

In the mountains of Papua roam a pigmy-sized people, the pure Papuans. They are a race quite distinct from the coastal peoples, and with customs that are very primitive and strange. Though small, they are perfect in stature, and the young people are quite good-looking. They are now fast coming within the pale of civilization, owing to the splendid work of the traveling magistrates of the Papuan administration—a very fine body of civil servants. A few years back, before these magistrates got in touch with these people, they were constantly at war, one tribe fighting another, sometimes destroying or wiping out whole villages, or, more often, killing the men and carrying off the women. Men and women dress very meagerly—in fact, their main covering is necklaces of dogs' teeth or shells, with a long white bone pencil stuck through the lower portion of the nose, and called "nose-sticks." The men paint their bodies with red and yellow pigments, and carry big bows and arrows, much bigger than themselves. The women, always very subject to the men, are silent and shy, and do not decorate themselves much. In time of widowhood or family mourning they blacken their faces and hair, already very black, with charcoal, giving them a most grotesque appearance. While the natives of the coast lands of Papua demand tobacco as a present, the hill peoples delight in common coarse salt, and, given a handful, they will treasure it up to make it last as long as possible.

Huts Built Up on Poles.

The native villages have the huts built up on poles, and while the family live on the upper story, pigs wallow in awful filth below, and, in consequence, it is possible to smell a village miles away. These people are very fond of dogs and pigs as pets. Pigs are natural to the island, but dogs are not, and this is how the natives came to get them: Many years ago, when Papua (then called New Guinea) was only occasionally visited by some plucky British traders, a dog belonging to one of them proved an immense attraction to the natives; and the trader, seeing a good opportunity to make money—or rather, a cheap way to get large supplies of copra (dried coconut for oil), of which the natives had plenty to barter away—went to Australia and in one of the Queensland towns bought up all the mongrel dogs that could be had. He got quite a ship full, and returned to Papua, doing a roaring trade, every dog selling for at least over twenty pounds—or that value in copra. In turn, the coastal natives bartered their dogs to the mountain natives, but the breeds from mongrels have deteriorated until the wretched things now seen are hairless, ugly creatures, petted while alive, but much prized after death for their teeth, which make the principal native jewelry.

Papua will presently loom large in commerce, for it is a land of marvelous resources, and its soil is of rich fertility. Every tropical plant product thrives wonderfully, and British enterprise has shown that, with wise and progressive administration, this island should be one of the brightest jewels of the British empire.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased. Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

ASPIRIN

Introduced by "Bayer" to Physicians in 1900

You want genuine Aspirin—the Aspirin prescribed by physicians for nineteen years. The name "Bayer" means the true, world-famous Aspirin, proved safe by millions of people. Each unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" contains proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuritis and for Pain generally. Always say "Bayer" when buying Aspirin. Then look for the safety "Bayer Cross" on the package and on the tablets. Handy tin boxes of twelve tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger packages. Aspirin is trade mark of Bayer Manufacture Monocetacidester of Salicylic acid.

She Was a Peach.

Three-year-old Mary Ellen demands a reason for everything and some of the reasons are mother's sudden inspirations. Sometimes she passes them on to other children. The other afternoon a group of children was talking to the wee miss, all giving her that sort of confection known as "taffy." Mary Ellen ate it with relish. Suddenly she turned to the child nearest her, "Do you think I'm pretty? Don't you think I'm sweet?" she asked.

He answered in the affirmative. "Well," she smiled sweetly, "my mamma found me in a peach basket." Two or three of the children giggled but twelve-year-old Arthur sprang gallantly to the rescue. "No wonder you're such a little peach," he returned.

English to the French.

Many soldiers brought home French brides and now are busy teaching them to talk English. One of the mothers is trying hard to help her daughter-in-law. Also she is trying to teach her little French daughter-in-law to cook American dishes.

The other evening she was showing her how to cook oatmeal and how to stir it with a spoon.

"You stir it, Josephine," she told her. "Remember—stir."

A few minutes later the family dog walked into the kitchen wagging his tail in a friendly manner. Josephine regarded him a minute, and then said: "Oh, zee-see dog stir wiz his tail."

Explanatory.

Janet's father brought her a nice little fox terrier, and let her take it out on a string, warning her to be careful and not let it get away. We were going down the street with our big collie and met little Janet and her dog. Janet was terrified. She jumped up and down and started to scream.

Calling out dog away, I said to her, "Don't be frightened, Janet. Our dog will not hurt your dog at all."

"Well," she replied, still quite nervous, "I just got this dog last night and he don't know very much."—Exchange.

HOW IS YOUR EXPRESSION?

Well to Remember Sometimes That a Man Is Apt to Be Judged by His Looks.

What kind of expression do you wear habitually? Is it sour, morose, repellent? Is it a mean, stinging, contemptible, uncharitable, intolerant expression? Do you wear the expression of a bulldog, a grasping, greedy, hungry expression, which indicates an avaricious nature? Do you go about among the members of your family with a thunder-cloud expression, with a melancholy, despondent, hopeless look on your face? Do you wear the sunshine expression which radiates good cheer and hope, which indicates a feeling of good will and of helpfulness? These questions are asked by a keen student of nature, writing in a recent publication.

Do people smile and look happier when you approach them, or do they shrink from you and feel a chilly, gooseflesh sensation come over them as they see you approach? It makes all the difference in the world to you and to those whom you influence, what kind of expression you wear.—The Continent.

THE WOMAN'S CLUB

By Mrs. Palmer Rhodes.

On Monday, Feb. 9, the Sierra Madre Woman's club was able to present another of the delightfully interesting programs rendered by Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith. The readings in both poetry and prose were selected with great care, the reader giving her favorite selections in a number of instances and each offering vied with its predecessor in breathing out loving messages for the special need of each and every hearer. The attendance was extremely good, and a number of new members, as well as visitors, mingled with the faithful ones who are always in attendance.

Following the program, a social hour was enjoyed, Mrs. E. H. Porter, Mrs. Chas. Klunk and Mrs. Stella Dennison presiding at the tea tables. Just previous to this meeting the Drama section of the club held a most interesting session, class instruction, discussion and reading occupying the time most profitably.

Don't forget about the cooked food sale, which is being held at the Welsher grocery store on Saturday Feb. 14, under the auspices of the Woman's club. Donations are solicited from each and every club member, which signifies that there will be a splendid variety of everything good, for the selection of the buyer. Come early and avoid the rush.

SCHOOL NOTES

Following is the essay winning the first prize in the contest explained in a former publication of The News. Florence Swisher, an eighth grade student, was the winner of the first prize, while Betty Moore of the sixth grade took the second prize and Mary Jamison, eighth grade, the third prize. The second and third prize essays will also be published in the paper next time.

"Lafayette, We Are Here!"

(By Florence Swisher)

"Rumpety dum a drum adum!" The sound of drums echoed along the streets of Paris, and thru the crowds might be seen a regiment of men in khaki marching fearlessly abreast with the sons of France in their true blue uniforms, headed by the Star Spangled Banner and the Tri-color of France. The same firm, resolute look of determination could be seen on each American laddie's face.

"They shall not pass!" had been the vow and now these Americans were here to see that they should not pass!

"General Pershing est venir." (General Pershing is here.)

"Vive la Amerique!" It was the cry on every lip. Old men cheered in broken voices, with tears raining down their wrinkled cheeks. Vivacious youths shouted hilariously. Little children stared in speechless wonder, but as the incessant tattoo of the drums gurgled mirthfully, while their mothers wept aloud in their joy, and from each heart a prayer of thanks was silently offered.

The Stars and Stripes flew aloft from the steeples, and hung from each window. Every child in its hand clasp them, gleefully waving them on high. Their hearts were gladdened by the coming of the Americans; it meant safety, food and shelter to them, and when at last the large gray machine passed draped in the folds of the Stars and Stripes mingled with those of the French emblem, bearing General Pershing and Marshal Joffre the crowd broke into a joyous "Hooray!"

Pershing received his first pang of home-sickness when he heard that familiar cry on foreign lips. On and on they went thru the peering crowds, each anxious to get a glimpse of the great American general. On and on to the little Picpus cemetery, where Pershing was to visit the tomb of Lafayette. The tomb was surrounded by a simple iron railing, where a marble shaft had been erected to his honored memory, bearing the inscription "Marie Jean Paul Yves Roche Gilbert du Motier Lafayette, born 1757, died 1834."

Marshal Joffre, General Dubaid and General Peltier, and the boys in horizon blue bearing the Tri-color of France, stand opposite General Pershing, General Stanton and the boys in khaki, the foremost bearing aloft the Stars and Stripes. General Pershing raised his hand in salute to the living French and to the one who risk his life to help us, one hundred forty three years ago.

Marshal Joffre made a few appropriate remarks suitable to the occasion and which deeply touched the hearts of the Frenchmen. While Joffre talked, thru Pershing's mind flitted the vision of Lafayette when in 1777 he, with a brave little band, fitted up a ship and despite the commands of his sovereign had come to our aid. To help us in our struggle for independence. The picture arose of Lafayette cheering, urging our colonists on, in the battle of Yorktown. Lafayette, the brave, the fearless, the gallant. And now history had repeated itself, for Pershing with a host of Yankees was here to save France, but it was not with the objection of his country for all America was there to back him up!

Then this illusion faded and in its place came the one of Pershing's grandparents when years ago in Alsace Lorraine their home had been burned by the Germans and destitute and poverty stricken they were forced to seek their home elsewhere. And now after all these years Pershing was to gain his revenge and pay the debt to the dead—may the living spirit of Lafayette!

Marshal Joffre had finished and the boys in blue and khaki awaited Pershing's message to Lafayette and to the French of the Great World War. This message was given in just four words—words to be repeated all over the world. They were:

"Lafayette nous vola" (Lafayette, we are here.) It was a touching scene beautiful in its simplicity. Four words, yet they will remain long in the hearts of those who witnessed the scene. They can never be forgotten. What more could be said? In that one brief sentence Pershing symbolized the attitude of all America; it spoke America's gratitude when she sent her sons and money to help repay France the debt we can never repay in full. For without Lafayette, without the battle of the Marne, we might have been fighting the Germans on our own soil instead of that of foreign.

"Lafayette, we are here." To that these words are added:

"And, Lafayette, we are coming coming a million strong!"

LIFE FROM MY WINDOW

(By an ex-Service Man)

I have endeavored in my weekly efforts to say something to cheer the distressed. Have you benefited by reading them? We all have different ideas of service. I have adopted this means of helping you because I know how nice it is to have someone help to push a heavy load. "If there is anything I can do for any fellow being, let me do it now, for I shall not pass this way again." It was, and is, my motto. I do not see how I could do better, or more effectively than through the column so generously put at my disposal.

Man since time began has looked from his window, saw life and wrote about it. Thought helps us. Let us look through other eyes this week. Here are some helpful quotations:

"By force of my will power I will subdue this disease."—Bhudda.

"Every moment of worry weakens the soul for its daily combat."—Henry Wood.

"We can never see the sun rise by looking into the west."—E. W. Wilcox.

"It was only a glad 'good morning' As she passed along the way, But it spread the morning glory Over the livelong day."—Anon.

"The mountain top must be reached no matter how many times we fall in reaching it. The fall is not counted; it does not register; the picking up and going counts in life."—Flora Howard.

"When things got to goin' wrong with me, I says: 'Oh Lord, whatever comes, keep me from gettin' sour!' Since then I have made it a practice to put all my worries down in the bottom of my heart, then set on the lid an' smile."—Mrs. Wiggs.

"Nor deem the irrevocable past As wasted, wholly vain; If rising on its wreck, at last, To something nobler we attain."—Longfellow.

"Be of good cheer."—New Testament.
